Mrs. Betsey Gurney Perham Rowe.

Mrs. Betsey Gurney Perham Rowe died at her late residence in Jamaica, N. Y., Saturday, July 24. Her last message was: "God bless you; may your journey through life be as pleasant as mine, and all your undertakings be successful."

Mrs. Rowe was born in Woodstock, March 13, 1821, the daughter of Joel and Sophronia (Bisbee) Perham, of Woodstock. She was a sister of the late Ex-Gov. Perham of Washington, D. C., Kilborn Perham of Woodstock, Joel Perham of Boston, Mrs. Viana Churchill of Norway and Mrs. Cynthia A. Lapham, the only one of the family now living, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. Edward E. Witt of Norway.

She married Merrill Jordan Rowe, Dec. 22, 1844, a successful and intellgent farmer, who moved to Norway, Nov. 9, 1872, to the "Amos F. Noyes farm" where Harlan P. Brown now lives. Three children were born to them. The two oldest, Edwin Merrill and Ellen Elizabeth, died in 1861 of diphtheria at the ages of 12 and 13 years. After Mr. Rowe's death Mrs. Rowe, with her youngest and only living son, Edwin M. and wife (Annie Cordelia Burnham of Norway) and children lived on the home farm awhile till they sold and went to New York state. Mrs. Rowe has since lived with her son and family.

Last summer, Mrs. Rowe, accompanied by her son and wife, visited Maine and spent several weeks visiting the familiar and well-remembered scenes of her childhood, girlhood and married life. She appeared very active for one of her years and enjoyed meeting her old friends. Of course to her there must have been a vein of sadness mingled with the pleasure, but from her manner none would have suspected it.

The funeral services were at the Universalist church at 4 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, July 28th, conducted by Rev. Harrison S Whitman, D. D., of Portland. Interment in Pine Grove cemetery.

Finally she said, "When they are all in I am going to collect them together and show them to my friend, Mrs. Katherine Jones."

Deep Sea Fishing Trip.

This coming Saturday is the day set for the annual Deep Sea Fishing trip for this vicinity. The cavalcade of fishermen with overalls and rubber boots will leave Norway and South Paris on the arrival of the early morning train, which is due to leave Norway at 4:45 a. m. Upon arrival in Portland, Capt. Randall's deep sea fishing sailing craft, with engine attachment, will go down the harbor eight to ten or more miles, anchor and allow the visitors to fish.

Those who feel well enough to fish will enjoy it, and those who do not will want to be put ashore. Last year between thirty and forty went and they made an excellent catch of haddock, flounders, tom cod, pollock and dog fish, and had a great day of it. It is expected the sea will yield a bountiful harvest for those who go.

If interested in making this trip, and you all should be, speak to or call up Dr. L. Hall Trufant, who is making arrangements for the trip. Remember the date and the early hour of starting. There is room for many more and you are invited to go.

Major Has a New Collar.

"Major," the Norway dog watchman, now owns a collar. It is one of the best worn by any dog in town and on the plate is engraved "Deputy Night Watch, Norway, Me. Lic. 7." It is locked with a padlock and key. The leather is good for it was selected by that well known judge of leather, L. P. Bartlett, Jr. The ornaments are of silver color and will be very becoming when worn over Major's thick glossy black coat of hair.

This is how Major came to own this collar, the envy of Norway dogdom. When spring came around, through his devotion to duty Major had no home and no master to buy him a collar and the laws of Maine said that without a collar he must be killed.

Mr. Bartlett pitied the faithful little fellow trudging about his duty, often in the winter when it is icy and bad travel till his feet are so sore he has to be shut up. His friends had him licensed and Mr. Bartlett farwarded the collar.

It is hoped that the people in Norway village corporation will give this homeless dog, who is working for the public safety, a bit of something to eat when he call on them.

Something New Under the Moon.

Thursday morning at a little past three the people along Main street, Norway saw a wonderous sight. The gasoline train of the Linn dog show, that had been stationed off Whitiman Street for a three nights stand, Monday Tuesday and Wednesday, were enroute for Oxford. The principal feature of the caravan is a car about the size of a trolley car. This has a room in front for the driver, and the rest of the car is a room in which Mr. and Mrs. Linn live, and where the meals are furnished for all connected with the show.

The car is driven by a fifty-horse power, four-cylinder gasoline motor. There are two pairs of ordinary heavy wheels in front, the front pair being used for steering. Under the rear of the car is one of the trucks such as are used in the Lombard steam log hauler. The bearing surface on each side of the truck is a sort of endless chain about fifteen inches wide, four feet and a half of which is on the ground at one time. Inside this chain sprocket wheels work, to which the power is applied.

Back of the car are attached, tandem, four ordinary heavy wagons, loaded with the varied impedimenta of the concern.

A dynamo under the car, run by the motor, makes electric light for the evening performances.

The weight of the car is about six tons, and when the trailers are hitched on, the whole outfit weighs about fifteen tons. Naturally it is geared low and strikes a slow gait.

When chugging along the public highway belching, steam and gas fumes, it makes about as much noise as a freight train. "Does it scare horses?" is the question all ask. Of course it does. It would scare the spirits of our forefathers. It is understood a herald on a cycle motor goes ahead and clears the road for the "king of vehicles."

The show attracted the crowd and the tent seating 400 was filled every night. The dogs gave a good performance. The moving and stationary pictures and the musical part of the program was worth the small price of admission.

The show consisted of musical comedies, moving pictures, illustrated songs and trick dogs. There were good crowds attended all the performances, which were well liked.

A special town meeting has been called for Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m., to see if the town will rescind the vote passed at the annual meeting which instituted the superintending school committee to maintain a school in the Bolster district. It seems that only one family desired to have school keep there the others preferring to have the children attend the village schools. They will also see if the town will authorize the school committee to transfer $200 of the amount appropriated from the school repairs account to the insurance, apparatus and appliances account, and also to see if the town will vote to raise $250 to pay expenses for the 100th anniversary of Hannibal Hamlin which takes place at Paris Hill, Aug. 27th.

Rev. Wallace Chesbro was at the C. M. G. hospital at Lewiston, Tuesday, and accompanied Mrs. Charles F. Harding to her home here.

J. F. Plummer is having new oak, panel work floors laid in his show windows and they have also been enlarged. Ernest Records is doing the work.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Ordway and daughter Hester go to Melrose, Mass., Saturday, for a week's visit with Mr. Ordway's sister, Mrs. George Lasselle.

The addition at the court house is progressing in first class order. The brick work was finished, Wednesday, and is ready for the carpenters to finish.

Arthur Daniels, bookkeeper at the Berlin City National Bank, returned Wednesday, after spending several weeks' vacation with his mother, Mrs. M. J. Daniels.

Oscar F. Bowker has been making repairs on his house on Nichols street. A piazza has been added, also a large plate glass window put in, and general repairs done on the interior.

Mrs. C. P. Hubbard, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. G. F. Eastman, is visiting at her son's, E. F. Hubbard's, in Portland for a few days, after which she will go to her cottage at Kezar lake for the month of August.

Judge Savage of Auburn is assigned for the October term of court but as he held the May term instead of the Chief Justice, Judge Emery may hold the October term here. It is not, however, decided as the Chief Justice is in Europe at the present time.

Dr. C. L. Buck, superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school, and Walter Dennison, superintendent of the Baptist Sunday school, visited the Congregational church at Norway, Sunday. The superintendents are visiting different schools to gain new ideas which will make their schools more interesting.

THE ONLY WAY

Many Norway Citizens Have Discovered It.

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to life-long suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys and cures these troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills owe their world-wide fame to the fact that they cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Follow the example of this Norway citizen and you will be convinced that this is so.

C. C. Dearborn living on Pleasant street, South Paris, Me., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and think so highly of them that I am perfectly willing to give my name to be published in their favor. I only hope it may be the means of bringing relief to some one suffering as I have suffered. For a long time I was troubled by a dull pain in my back. My kidneys did not act in a proper manner and the secretions were very unnatural in appearance. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills from F. A. Shurtleff & Co.'s drug store, used them in accordance with the directions, and they helped me a great deal. I am going to continue using this remedy and hope to be permanently cured." 31-32

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

"To-Memory Dear."

The snows of yesterday are gone,
Their like will come again;
The blooms of yester June are fled,
But more will gladden men.
We ask for what has gone for good
Amid the dizzy whirl
And for the sign by which we knew
The old time little girl.

Now from the cradle to the grave
Throughout their length of years,
To hold their hats upon their heads
They bristle thick with spears.
And so we ask: Where has she gone,
The girl before the pin,
Who wore to moor her hat on tight,
Elastic 'neath her chin?

To Keep Eggs Fresh.

Fresh eggs in cold storage at 34 degrees Fahrenheit undergo little if any change, for this temperature is sufficient to limit the activities and prevent the growth of the more common bacteria.

The problem of preserving eggs by excluding air has brought forth numerous methods. According to American Magazine, German investigators several years ago conducted a series of tests, keeping the eggs for about eight months in some twenty different ways, and found that,

Wrapped in paper, 80 per cent. bad.

Packed in bran or coated with paraffine, 70 per cent. bad.

Immersed in sol. salicylic acid, 50 per cent. bad.

Coated with shallac or colludion, 40 per cent. bad.

Packed in wood ashes, 20 per cent. bad.

Coated with vaseline or immersed in a solution of water glass or lime water, none bad.

From these experiments, as well as many others, it has been found that a solution of water glass offers about the best method of preserving eggs, aside from cold storage. Water glass is the common name for potassium or sodium silicate, and is obtained in the shops in the form of a thick liquid something like glycerine. One part of this to nine of sterile water makes a preserving fluid of the proper strength.

The eggs should be packed in a clean, sweet vessel, and the solution poured over them until they are well covered. Preserved in this way in a cool place, they will keep for months and often cannot be distinguished in appearance from the fresh article. It is generally conceded that they lack flavor of the new laid eggs, but are in no way inferior in nutritive value.

Rain for Fifty Days.

Unless it rains on St. Swithin's day,
There'll be no rain for forty day.

And as it rained this year on the day set apart to the memory of this good old saint we may look for plenty of moisture during the rest of July and August.

St. Swithin was an English ecclesiastic who died July 2, 1762. A century later he was canonized and as his place of burial was, according to his own request, in the yard of the cathedral at Winchester, the body was exhumed July 15, with the intention of giving it a more honorable burial inside the church. But violent rains set in and for forty days the burial was delayed, giving rise to the popular belief, in England especially, that if it rains on the 15th of July it will rain every day for forty days.

Her Request.

A lady complained to her milkman of the quality of milk he sold her.

"Well, mum," said the milkman, "the cows don't get enough grass feed this time o' year. Why, them cows are jus' as sorry about it as I am. I often see 'em cryin'—regular cryin' mum—because they feel as how their milk don't do 'em credit. Don't you believe it, mum?"

"Oh, yes, I believe it," responded his customer, "but I wish in the future you'd see that they don't drop their tears into our can."

The Real Indispensable Girl.

One of the worst mistakes a woman can make when engaged in a business career is to think she is indispensable. The fact is, no one is indispensable, no matter how much it may hurt to acknowledge that truth even to one's self. It is never a prudent thing to count on one's employer believing that another cannot be found who will do the work just a well.

There are many little ways in which the clever girl may make herself useful, outside of her regular duties that will make her of value.

Of course, one may cause a void, make one's absence felt for a time, but in the end that will be filled, and the work done better than you ever could or would do it. For this reason, if for no other, it is not wise to slight your work or do any but the best work of which you are capable.

She who is quick to grasp an opportunity to be of service, who is at the office before the required hour, who remains after hours, of her own accord, to complete a day's work, is the girl who will be in the eye of her employer for an advancement.

The girl who will win the most and best for herself is the one who makes her employer's interest hers and who gives to his service the best she has at her disposal.

Not only must one's work be well and intelligently done, but it must include exactness of details. Neatness is one great essential that must not be overlooked.

The general appearance of a woman in regard to trimness and neatness must not be overlooked and every woman is judged by her carriage, her personal manners and the neatness of her wearing apparel.

It is not necessary for one to dress beyond her means, as many misguided girls do, to present a good appearance.

Elaborate and expensive clothes are out of place in a business office or store and in this day, pretty, plain suits and gowns of good material and stylish cut may be had at reasonable prices.

Last, but not least, personality counts a great deal in the success of a business life.

Meet people with a smile and an affable, courteous and interested manner, for indifference never wins friends or business.

There is always a welcome for the woman with the cheerful word and the sunny smile and for the one whose work is well done.

The Pole Star.

Ursa Major and Ursa Minor are known also as the triones and as the Greater Wain and Lesser Wain. It is curious to note that the larger constellation was given the figure of the bear by the Arabs and by the Iroquois red men. The assumed forms are ordinarily fanciful, and the identity of the names in this instance affords food for speculation. Homer uses both bear and wain (wagon) in his references to these stars. It is evident that the name bear was a translation from some original Aryan language as the constellation is called in Sanskrit riksha, a word that in different genders means both a bear and a star. Of course the polar star in the tail of Ursa Minor is the constellation's point of glory. In this case we may say fairly that the tail wags the dog, because the group of stars was once called the dog's tail, or cynosure. From that word we have our word cynosure, that toward which all eyes turn, as to the dog's tail for sight of the pole star.

The Value of a Potato Digger.

Farmers raising four acres or more of potatoes can well afford a potato digger, but when you buy a digger get a good one. Get a digger that will go down into the ground and bring the potatoes to the surface and lay them out in a narrow row ready to sort and put in the crates. And don't be frightened out because some one says they are hard on horses, but instead put on four horses and set the digger a notch deeper. It will pay just in pulverizing the ground.

If you have any quack grass it will shake the earth from the roots and leave the quack on top ready for burning. A good digger gets every potato, and it gets them quickly, but it takes power to pull it just the same as a gang plow takes power. You can't do anything thoroughly without either a push or a pull. Potatoes make a paying crop if you grow them in quantities and grow them regularly every year, but you need machinery to handle them for hand labor is too expensive.

Rather a severe set back was given the defensive tactics of the liquor dealers in a Maine town when the judge of the municipal court convicted a dealer in a case where the prosecution did not produce seized liquor in court. The case was against a place where the liquor was kept in a room barricaded with iron and heavy plank and the crinks passed through a small opening to the bar.

Whenever the place was raided the man in the "fort" has been able to break bottles and spill the stock before he could be reached. The police raided the place and the stock was spilled as usual. No liquor was seized, but upon the evidence of the police that there was every apparent indication that it had been spilled the respondents were given a fine and jail sentence.

The First Maine Heavy Artillery Regimental Association will hold its 33d reunion at Carmel on Wednesday, August 18, 1909. The Bangor and Aroostook, the Maine Central and the Penobscot Central railroads will sell round-trip tickets to Carmel at reduced rates. Trains leave Bangor for Carmel at 6.45 a. m. The local G. A. R. Post with band will meet incoming trains at 7.15 and 8.20 a. m., and escort the visitors to the town hall. Address of welcome at 10 a. m., followed by the regular meeting. Dinner will be served at the dining hall, town house, at 12 m. The camp-fire will be opened at 2 p. m., to which the public are invited. Exercises will close at 4.30 in season for trains east and west.

"What's the matter, my lad?" an old gentleman asked of a youngster who was crying lustily in the street. But the boy couldn't reply through his sobs. "Please, sir," chimed in a companion, "we were playing marbles and he's bin and lost his glass alley." "There don't cry," exclaimed the old gentleman kindly. "Here's a penny; run and buy some more." But the tears continued to flow. "There," went on the benefactor, "I wouldn't cry any more if I were you." "Yes-e-s you would," gasped the weeping one, "if you'd"—sobs "lost your father's glass eye!"

Making Jellies.

Conditions which puzzled the housekeeper of long ago and caused her to pay more or less superstitious attention to the phrases of the moon are perfectly understood today by her up-to-date descendant. She may not have better success than her ancestor, her success may not be as great but she is saved the wear and tear of nerves that comes from uncertainties. She knows what to expect under certain conditions.

If there is a deluge of rain on Monday, she does not wish to make jelly on Tuesday because she knows the fruit will have absorbed the water and that means extra boiling to evaporate the water; the long boiling will darken the jelly or coarsen the flavor.

She also prefers to make jelly on a bright day. When she can possibly take care of fruit and attend to other imperative matters, she knows that she can mash the juice from the berries, heat them and let them drip. If she heats and then covers there is no danger of fermentation for awhile. That helps her sometimes to divide her work and make jelly on different days instead of all at once. She keeps for her family a bright little woman, instead of a tired overworked one.

The best fruit for jelly is either a little under ripe or just ripe. The reason is that green fruit contains two elements, which unite into a different element called pectin as the fruit nears ripeness. It is this new element which causes the juice to form into jelly when sweetened sufficiently and heated. After fruit ripens this pectin disappears.

Even when it is present in quantity to make jelly, the fruit that is too ripe cooks to pieces too easily and gives a cloudy jelly. when one has reason to suppose that fruit is too ripe to make good jelly it is a good plan to add a small amount of lemon juice or acid fruit.

One of the best fruits to use as a base jelly is the apple. It always jellies and a very little will be sufficient to influence a large amount of other fruit. Its flavor is not discernible when used with other fruit.

There is one general mode of procedure in this work says a writer in the Pictorial Reviews. Examine the fruit, reject the decayed pieces, wash well and drain. Perhaps the finest fruit will be culled out for canning. Juicy fruit is not cooked with water. It is enough to mash it and heat gently, thus drawing out the juice. Apples, peaches, plums or "meaty" fruit are put on to cook in just enough water to cover or even less. If the pulp is to be used for marmalade the fruit must be pared and cored, otherwise it is not necessary. Cores and skins from the apples could be cooked seperately and the juice poured with that from the pulp.

As soon as the juice is extracted turn all into a flannel or stout linen bag and let it drip without squeezing. This makes the clearest jelly, and a second grade can be made from what is squeezed out.

Have two cups of exactly the same size and keep one for the sugar and the other for juice. Measure equal parts of sugar and juice for each boiling and do not try to make more than two glasses at once. There may be two kettles on at once, but one should be started a little later than the other. No mental except silver should be used in any of this work. The utensils should be granite or earthern.

Some prefer to heat the sugar and add it to the juice when it heats. At any rate, stir untill the sugar is dissolved and then boil steadily but not hard. After ten minutes it must be watched closely for it changes rapidly and if cooked too long the jelly will be too thick or fail to form.

While cooking, the juice must be skimmed and when ready to set off it must be cleared entirely. If the scum is stirred it will break and scatter through the jelly and cannot be removed.

The glasses should be heated in water, and when being filled should stand in hot water out of a draft. Put a silver spoon in the glass while pouring in the jelly and there will be less danger of breaking the glass. The jelly is done when it hangs in a drop from the spoon and coats the spoon evenly.

After the jelly is cool, pour melted paraffin over to the depth of a quarter of an inch. When the glass is opened the wax can be washed and saved to use again. It is a good thing to use the wax even with the tin covers. Nothing but tin withstands the ravages of house mice. Glasses may be covered with paper dipped in white of egg.

Currant Jelly—Make as directed for all jelly or use this way. Heat the juice to boiling and take an equal amount of hot sugar. Stand near the glasses and stir till the sugar is dissolved. The jelly forms at once and everything must be ready.

Crab Apples—Follow general directions using half as much water as fruit.

Grape Jelly—Two gallons can be made, different in color and taste, by pulping the berries and making the skin into one jelly and the pulp into the other. A teaspoonful of lemon juice to a pint of grape juice will assure jelly which will not candy. A mere trace of vegetable-pink coloring matter will give as pretty a color as crab apples. Indeed the jelly from the pulp can scarcely be told from crab apple jelly.

Green Grapes—Use before they turn.

Rhubarb Jelly—Wash but do not pare. Use half a cup of water to start cooking and cut in thin pieces. Put a few apples with the rhubarb. If the color is not pink enough, add red skins or a speck of vegetable color.

Blackberry Jelly—At the first of the season they will make jelly but it is best to use a few apples when very ripe.

Cherries and Currants—Use one-fourth currants.

Gooseberries—One-half water to cook berries.

Tomato Jelly—Use the yellow varieties and put the juice of one lemon to every pint of tomato juice.

Quince Jelly—Use any proportion of apples and quinces. Equal parts give satisfaction. Pare and core the quinces and also the apples and use the pulp for marmalade.

Peaches—Very uncetain because as sold in cities they are over ripe or fermentation has set in. Lemon juice is recommended.

Plums—Use them under ripe.

Closely related to the jellies are the fruit syrups. The process is the same as for jelly except that half as much sugar is used. They are fine for flavoring ices and puddings.

One enterprising woman supples herself with pin money by making spiced raisin cookies using fruit syrup instead of milk. These she sells to tourists at a near-by resort. No doubt the same thing could be done with the woman's exchanges, as the cakes would ship well and improve with age.

Telling How to Care for the Eyes

No eyes however beautiful in themselves, preserve their attractiveness when sunken in hollow orbits; when the eyebrows are constantly contracted; when the eyelids are reddened or swollen; or when they resemble a seared leaf, brown and crumpled; or when the delicate membrane lining is inflamed and granulated; or when the surrounding tissue is covered with innumerable wrinkles, or when the eyelashes are short, stubby, uneven and patchy!

The eyes are in constant use, and yet, of all the organs in the body, they are the least cared for, and the most abused. We sew and read in a fading light, in forced positions, straining our eyes to the utmost, wrinkling our eyelids to a mere slit in an effort to concentrate the dim rays; women peer for hours at a time through veils some with solid dots and squares large enough to obscure the vision completely; we read in rapidly moving trains, while the matter we endeavor to focus upon is being jostled in all directions; we read while lying down and with insufficient light and the constant wonder is that our eyes are tolerant of such abusive treatment.

They should be given a bath morning and night, in the morning to remove the secretions which accumulate during sleep and to freshen and stimulate them for the day; upon retiring, to remove the dust and grime, and to prepare them for any treatment they might require, which is best given at this time, as it produces the best effect during the hours of rest.

For the bath nothing can take the place of an eye cup and either refined sea water or ordidary salt solution. It should be used quite warm for cleansing purposes, about a heaping teaspoonful of salt to a pint of water, and cold water can be dashed on afterward for its tonic effect.

I like to use two eye cups at once, one for each eye. Fill them quite full of the salt solution, hold them up near the eyes then lower the head until the eyes fit into the cups, now carry them upward as the head is thrown back, thus inverting the eye cup. While in this position, open and close the lids constanly so that the water is splashed around quite vigorously. If the secretions have not all been carried away (they usually lodge along inner, under borders of the lids), dip a tiny pledget of cotton into the salt water and carefully remove any that remains. Never "dig" into the corners with a washcloth, or sponge or towel, it tends to inflame the delicate tissues.

While granulated lids are almost always an indication of eye strain, they are sometimes due to indigestion, especially in children. Frequently this condition is accompanied by such extensive secretions that the lids are glued together in the morning, or "crusts" form on the eyelashes. They must then be bathed gently with sterilized cotton and warm salt water, and the lotion used copiously.

It is not advisable to remove the crusts forcibly, as the lashes are sure to come away too. Annoint the eyelids along their borders thoroughly with an ointment, rubbing it gently with the tips of the fingers.

Styes are troublesome little boil like conditions due to inflammation of the hair follicles. At first they can sometimes be obviated by the continual application of heat, or of ethereal collodion applied with a camel's hair brush. When however, the condition goes on, a tiny poultice of flaxseed rapidly ripens the stye so that it can be opened with a sterile needle (made so by passing it through a flame two or three times). The pus should be entirely removed, and the parts bathed in very warm boracic acid water; the wound will heal in a few hours.

Incurving eyelids usually occur on the lower lid, and only by their removal is comfort insured. Anyone can do this by means of a cilia (hair) forceps. Sometimes electricity must be used to destroy the hair follicle; but it is quite painful.

The eyebrows, while acting as protectors to the eyes, also aid powerfully in lending expression to them and to the entire countenance. Thinly penciled, highly arched brows are a mark of beauty, and they are very rare. By pinching them between the fingers and confining them within a narrow line they can in time be trained to grow in this manner. Shaggy, superfluous hair can be removed with the cilia forceps; when the brows grow thick and unevenly, electrolysis successfully improves them.

The skin beneath the brows needs daily attention. One frequently sees a dry, scaly condition here, similar to dandruff of the scalp—and indeed it is the same thing—and here and there tiny bald patches. Crude petroleum rubbed well into them at night will relieve the scaliness and promote the growth of hair. A tiny brow-brush should be on every one's toilet table, and used daily; it imparts lustre to the brows and keeps them in good condition.

Since good health and spirits are manifested by the clearness and alertness of the eyes, so every derangement of the bodily functions leaves its impress upon them. Unconsciously when vexed or very tired even, one frowns and soon the habit is produced and ugly furrows appear, marring the beauty of the brow.

To "iron" these lines, stretch the skin smoothly between the thumb and forefinger of the left hand, vigorously rub a small bit of good face cream into the furrows in a direction opposite to that in which they are formed; then apply strips of adhesive plaster in such a manner that contraction of the muscles is impossible. Many women wear these plasters around the house as well as at night.—[Delineator.

The Moon's Influence.

Farmers Declare They Profit by Respecting This Superstition.

The agricultural department has undertaken to disabuse the mind of the American farmer of the "superstition" that the moon's phases influence the growth or yield of crops. This is a matter that has pestered the husbandman and the philosopher for ages, and the interrogatory is as pertinent to-day as it was when Shakespeare was a farmer. If the moon influences the action of the waters of the ocean, why should it not exercise some dominion over the energy of the soil?

Ten thousand times ten thousand intelligent, thrifty, successful farmers will tell you that they have profited by giving respect and making note of this superstition. They have been governed by it, and when they have disregarded it they will say the result has proved disastrous.

Shakespeare was endowed with a wonderful understanding, at once telescopic and microscopic. Nothing was too great for him to observe, and nothing too minute for him to disregard. He was a successful planter, and he believed in the moon superstition. In "Toilus and Cressida," where the lover made the extravagant protestations of his loyalty to his mistress, one of the similes he drew was:

As true as steel, as plantage to the moon,
As sun to day, as turtle to her mate,
As iron to admant, as earth to the center.

What is it that could occupy the human mind that Shakespeare did not investigate and pursue to its last conclusion if it were confined to matters material to the world? Nothing—absolutely nothing; and if he advised the planting of potatoes in the dark of the moon and the laying of a rail fence worm in the light of the moon, nobody is going to the poorhouse by acting on his admonition.

"Superstition" is a very good thing to encourage now and then—especially the moon part of it in relation to planting and cultivating.

We don't mind the passing of the strawberry so much as if the blueberry pie and blueberry bread were not already with us. Even strawberry shortcake can't beat them.

SWEDEN.

Mrs. Rachel W. Knight.

Mrs. Rachel W. Knight, better known as Aunt Rachel, passed away July 18 at the advanced age of 84 years.

At the age of 16 years she was married to Caleb Knight of Sweden, who died about 20 years ago. No children blest this union.

She has been a very industrious hard working woman ever ready to lend a helping hand in sickness and was of a cheerful disposition. Her work was always well done, her home seemed a haven of rest. No one ever called hungry but what was generously fed. Four years ago her brother, C. P. Poore of California came to live here and care for her. He was a soldier of the late war and shared his pension with her. He has scarcely left her home during this time and has tenderly watched and waited on her until within the last six weeks when she became so feeble it was thought best to remove her to her nephew's, Lloyd Poore's, of Lovell where she received every attention from him and his wife until the end came.

Funeral services were held at their house, Rev. Mr. Reeves officiating. The remains were brought to Sweden for interment. She leaves one other brother V. C. Poore, of Oketo, Kansas.

There were many beautiful flowers sent by relatives and friends:

Cut flowers—Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Poor.
Roses and pansies—Mrs. Addie Andrews and Hallie Walker.

A SOUL IS SAVED

or the Inebriate is placed on the line of Salvation when the individual has taken the Keeley treatment. Those who backslide into error are those who do not place as high an estimate upon the Cure as they should, or likely have made up their minds that they are not quite ready to cease tampering with alcoholic drinks, but have a great desire to taste of it through curiosity, but have no craving for it whatever. They are unstable in mind with little real object in life because they have not set their aims high enough to absorb their mind, soul and body in the noble work of learning to know themselves and their relation to God. The burdens of life on the alcoholic line are easily and quickly removed from the individual patient, and he is restored to his normal condition in bodily vigor—mental powers and quiet nerves within a very few days' treatment.

The backslider or those that relapse are thoroughly cured every time they take a course of Keeley treatment, and after they have relapsed the second time it is fairly good evidence that they do not want to remain cured, or have not got brains enough to desire to live a sober life, or are inelligible for a Keeley Institute.

Those who sincerely desire to be cured and have had enough of drunkenness and its bad effect's, respect the Cure and do not relapse. The Keeley Cure solicit this latter specified class. 31-34

MRS. SUSAN T. ABBOTT.
Boston, Mass. MR. WILLIAM J. ABBOTT.

LOVELL.

William H. Abbott.

Saturday morning, July 17, Mr. Abbott arose in his usual health and attended to his chores. Soon after breakfast he took his fish rod and basket and telling his wife he was going to bring home trout enough for their dinner, started for Kezar river fishing.

Mrs. Abbott expected him back by eleven o'clock, at noon he had not come and she was much alarmed. She got John Kimball to go over to the meadow to look for him. He did not find him, and returning sent his son and hired man to look. Soon the news spread that Mr. Abbott was missing and men came from all sections.

By three o'clock there were as many as forty-five men scouring the woods. They found his tracks and followed him farther and farther up the river, at last into the new County road, so called. When he got into that he must have made a mistake for he went in the wrong direction for home. Then he came to a logging road which took him still farther from home, and away from the river.

About six o'clock Charles Norton and a party of men found him, away up on the side of the Howard Charles mountain, dead.

It is supposed that having good luck fishing he kept going farther up river, until finding it late he started to take a short cut home and went in the wrong direction, and that finding himself lost and traveling so far overcame him, and brought on an attack of heart failure.

They thought he died instantly as his fish basket and rod were on his arm and he appeared to be asleep. They had to carry him some distance through the woods and took him to the road near Grover's bridge.

It was a dreadful shock to his wife and also to the whole community.

Mr. Abbott was a genial man and was universally liked by both young and old. He was a native of Lovell, was born here Feb. 10, 1844, and lived here until the opening of the war, when he enlisted in the 13th Maine Regt. and served over four years. Soon after his return from the army he went to Boston, where he engaged in the teaming business, which he followed for forty years, retiring only last December.

Some years ago he purchased a house at No. 4, which he repaired and remodeled to his liking, and has spent his summers here since, in fact he was in the habit of coming a number of times in the year as he liked here very much.

In 1869 he married Susan Thomas of Byron and they had one son, William T., who is engaged in the tea business in Boston. Besides his wife and son he leaves two granddaughters and three sisters, Mrs. Esther Berry of Sweden, Mrs. Seth Hutchins of Lovell and Mrs. Freeman Shute of Biddeford, besides many relatives and friends to mourn.

He was a member of Washington lodge, F. & A. M., of Boston, Franklin lodge, No. 23, I. O. O. F., of Dorchester, Mass., and Gettysburg Post, No. 191, G. A. R., of Roxbury, Mass.

The funeral service was at his summer home, "The Sunshine," Tuesday, July 20, at 2 o'clock p. m. and he was laid to rest in the cemetery at No. 4 by brothers of the G. A. R. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, silently testifying to the high regard in which he was held.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Hard Luck.

A Norway woman was told that when making jelly a little gelatine added would improve the jelly. She did it and now mourns the loss of six quarts of currants.

She says that while the jelly product is not handsome it is good eating, but pride will not allow her to use it for layer cakes, or Washington pies and, the like where it would show for fear her reputation as a cook might suffer. She will use most of it for mince pies.

That is not all. She paid 14 cents a quart for the currants when an hour or two after the purchase a woman brought to her door some equally as good the selling price only 8 cents.

Llewellyn D. Cummings sprained his ankle a month or more ago and is still confined to crutches when he travels.

A large hat has been left at the ADVERTISER office. It takes up a lot of room and the owner is requested to call for it or pay rent.

The Norway street sprinkler is well decorated with the Cole's Jewelry Store literature. It was put on there to be read. Read it and profit thereby.

Co. D boys to go to Wakefield, Mass., New England Military Rifle Association July 29-30; and at Camp Perry, Ohio, National Team Match beginning Aug. 23, are Capt. Moses P. Stiles, 1st Lieut. Lyman H. Daughraty, 2d Lieut. Charles A. Marston and Corp. Alton E. Whitehead. Of Co. B, 1st Lieut. John A. Hastey, Rumford Falls.

H. H. Andrews of Calloway, Neb., made us a pleasant call. He and his family have been East some little time. His wife and daughter are now at Orono, visiting the family and friends in that city. Mrs. Andrews is a sister of Hon. Edgar E. Ring, chairman of the State Forest Commissioners and a member of the Fish and Game Commissioners. Mr. Andrews has spent some time there and was here visiting the scenes of his birthplace, Otisfield, and his relatives in this vicinity. He has been West about thirty years but has visited the East frequently. He is a broker, banker and dealer in real estate. Crops, he says, are looking splendidly through the West. He started for Nebraska last week.

Henry F. Favor of Brockton, Mass., arrived here Thursday and returned home with his family who have been visiting in this vicinity for the past four weeks, on Monday. Mr. Favor reads the ADVERTISER carefully each week and keeps posted, as far as the paper goes, on the news in this vicinity. Ten years ago he left us to go into the city to work as a carpenter, during which time he has resided in Brockton and built a nice two family house for himself near the famous Brockton Fair Grounds. He occupies a position as foreman for J. B. Nye, contractor and builder in that city, which position he has held for several years. His family consists of a wife and three children, two boys and one girl.

The funeral of Richard Schaefer was held at the residence of J. F. Bolster undertaker, last Friday, and was attended by the hotel people and friends with whom he had become acquainted. A delegation of Masons of Oxford Lodge had charge of the funeral. Rev. B. S. Rideout read the Scripture, made some remarks and a prayer. He was buried in the Rustfield cemetery. None of his relatives were present. He has a father 84 years of age who lives in West Roxbury, Mass., also one son about 21 years of age who lives in New York. During the time Schaefer was at the hotel, he made friends with everyone and was one of the most popular clerks ever at the Beal's Hotel. He was a member of the Germaine Lodge of Masons of Boston. His grave will be marked with a modest headstone erected by his Masonic friends and others.

Alex. MacLean at Nerve-Ease is entertaining his friends. Among the recent arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Saunders of Wakefield, Mass., who are enjoying their outing very much. Among the keepsakes prized very highly by Alex. MacLean is a silver medal received by him in 1857 as a first prize in writing. It was offered by the Royal Dixon Lodge of Odd Fellows of the Arlisan Place Academy, Dumbarton on the Clyde. Mr. MacLean's name is nicely engraved on the reverse side. We were very much surprised to ascertain that Mr. MacLean is nearly 70 years of age, as we supposed him to be a man right around 50. He tells us that he expects to live to be 100, as his father attained the age of 102 and his grandfather 110. He came to this country from Scotland 20 years ago and until he retired he was engaged in the manufacture of paper and has been so successful that he believes he has a right to retire and take things easy, to fish, gather flowers and entertain his friends.

Championship Series.

Radcliffe 1—Mechanic Falls 1.

The first contest in a series to determine the championship of Western Maine was played to the limit when Radcliffe of Norway and Mechanic Falls battled for more than nine innings in the rain for a decision.

Well, that scrimmage on the fair grounds last Saturday afternoon was certainly a generous bite of good base ball sandwiched between excusable errors and umpire hold-ups; the whole being well soaked in rain water from intermittent showers generously furnished by an unruly weather man. A large crowd patiently watched the battle through the rain drops and appeared disappointed even under these uncongenial conditions when Umpire Clark was forced to call the game in the first half of the tenth inning, with two Mechanic Falls batters down and one safely lodged on first. The score being 1-1 and honors evenly divided from the pitchers' standpoint so far as hits are concerned, but when strike-outs are mentioned, that agile, colored twirler, Adams, had the larger number to his credit.

Both teams are so well matched one cannot safely dope out what the result might have been in the end. It was a satisfactory contest however, even though decided results failed to come forth. Both line-ups were arraigned and critically analyzed for the first time this season, and all realize future battles will be of a decidedly warm nature, so each team must dig right down hard to keep away from the heels of the other.

One point was brought out in this rain storm game; it is this: "Uncle" Bill Leith and Percy Adams will be the feature acts in future events. It will be up to each opposing twirler as there is little difference in the strength of either line-up behind the pitchers' box, that is so far as results go to show in this, the first game in the series.

Now for the game: Mechanic Falls were the first batters up and they started in briskly, but it was quickly over as Purington put up a fly to Gammon; Adams cracked one to Harrison who got it across to Gammon in time for a put out; Barker landed a hot one to Leith who nailed it to first base for the third one down.

In the Radcliffe's first trip Harrison opened to Lawler and was thrown out at first base; Clason gained first on Barker's error, stole second but remained there for Lanan fanned and Roy Cole went out on a perpendicular fly to Pitcher Adams.

In the second Brigham bunted a grounder to Lafrance and got his out at first; Lizotte, the Lewiston man, received a pass but couldn't possibly find second base because Wescott and Tilton each pounded three times to no avail.

Radcliffe opened their second inning with "Uncle" Bill up. He found the ball squarely and sent it to Lawler who threw to Barker, catching the runner at first; Young struck out; Gammon gathered himself and drew a neat single (the first one for the game), Lafrance faced Adams and did the same trick; King tried hard to put over the line any old thing which might bring in the base runners, but the best offering was a grounder to Brigham who passed it over to Barker, putting King out at first. This closed the inning with two Norwayites on bases.

The fifth was also a quick one for Mechanic Falls, Lawler was out on a fly to Clason; Weston flied to Lafrance; Purington sent up a ball which Clason smothered and closed this short half. King started the fifth for the home delegation with a high fly into left field which was held by Weston; Harrison struck out and Clason was out on a drive to Wescott in right field.

The sixth assembly was held on a fall of rain and from this time on base ball proved a lottery, as clean hitting and fielding was something in the line of jugglery, yet the errors recorded were made earlier in the game and none came during the worst conditions.

In the seventh with Radcliffe up and one gone, Gammon hit sharply through Adams and connected with Umpire Clark. This connection stopped the ball so Adams threw to first catching Gammon. Umpire Clark declared the runner safe, Umpire Davis said "out" and stuck to his descision even against wiser heads in the game, merely because no one could produce a rule book showing the course to pursue in that kind of a play. A wordy argument ensued in which many let out hot air and a general hold up occured. Umpire Clark pulled the match on Mechanic Falls and when the visitors learned that no game ment no "mon" they instantly felt the force of the argument and got into the game, conceeding Gammon safe on first by virtue of Rule 53. sec. 6. This concession looked like a good omen but Lafrance the next batter went out on three strikes and Gammon was forced at second for the third out on a fielders choice from King's bat.

Lawler started the third for Mechanic Falls but "kid" Harrison lined him out to Gammon; Weston was more fortunate on his lay-out to short stop. "Kid" got the ball all right but made a wild heave to Gammon so the runner was safe and actually gained second on the play; Purington sacrificed, receiving his put out through Lanan to Gammon. Percy Adams, the batting terrier, hit the ball fair and square for a single, scoring Weston for the first run; Barker closed this half by going out on a ground ball to Gammon.

Harrison opened up the Radcliffe 3d inning with a strike out. Clason put up a fly to Lizzotte; Lanan must have carried the lucky wish bone for he hit to Lawler who bungeled around on fumbles and wild throws until Lanan biked around the bases to third and won a score on Lizzotte's low throw to Tilton at home plate; Roy Cole touched up Adams and got to first on Barker's muff; Leith failed to judge Adams' zig-zag delivery so famed. The result was now an even thing, 1 to 1, and remained so until the end of game.

Mechanic Falls started a bid for something material in fourth. Brigham went out via Harrison to Gammon. Lizzotte Knocked an easy one to Lafrance but he threw the wet ball more than 20 feet over Gammon's head, giving the runner second, but here he expired for Leith struck out Wescott and Tilton put up a high fly to Clason. Radcliffe was retired in quick order in their fourth. Young went out from Adams to Barker; Gammon put a fly into Barker's hands; Freddie Lafrance struck out.

In the eighth Mechanic Falls came near breaking the deadlock. With Purington out on three strikes by Leith, and Weston gone through Harrison to Gammon, Adams got a hit which he stretched over to second on erratic throwing; stole third and worked hard for a throw in that direction but failing in this he made a dive for home on a ball which proved to be Barker's third strike, Lanan was waiting though, and plastered the sphere on Adams pate with no uncertain action, gaining an extra put out even if not needed.

The ninth for Radcliffe opened in a glorious manner. Roy Cole knocked out a high one into center for Purington to grapple; Uncle Bill picked away a neat hit and stole second; Young fanned; Gammon waited patiently and drew a pass but Lafrance couldn't rise to meet the requirments and was thrown out at first by Adams. This left two men on bases and was the last opportunity to change the results, for the game was called while the visitors were at the bat in their tenth on uneven innings.

Notes.

Fans who are a bit superstitious should know that Radcliffe played their thirteenth game last Saturday. This may account for much of the hard luck.

Mechanic Falls was well represented by a large delegation of rooters. They secured a fifty cent rate for the round trip, using the regular passenger train west and returned after the game on a special. Let us do likewise next Saturday when the Radcliffes go to the Falls, and send down a regular old-fashioned gathering.

Percy Adams' shin bones must be made of India rubber. Did you notice that batted ball take a jump from his leg cushion to a point not far from the catcher's position.

"Uncle" Bill has pitched twelve games and only fifteen runs have been scored against him to date. He has struck out sixty-seven, allowed sixty-six singles, passed ten and hit three.

Frank Lanan has gained the reputation of being a dead shot on a throw to bases. Thus there are only a few who take a chance of stealing second, and even these never try the trick after their first attempts.

Remember that suit case full of rule books next Saturday. Louie Clark won't need one but there are others to whom a presentation copy might prove acceptable.

Lizzotte of Lewiston is becoming a familiar figure with us this season. He has appeared with the Pilgrims, Radcliffe and Mechanic Falls, and in fact shines as a general utility player.

That was a long chance that Percy Adams took when he tried to force his run with two men down and two strikes called on the batter. A bunt or the catcher dropping ball would have made the steal safe, as it was neither happened and the runner got the ball right on the "physog."

W. E. Bartlert, who has been living at the Beal's Hotel for the past six months, has gone to Provincetown, Mass.

Mrs. F. H. Lovering and daughter, Mrs. Chester B. Lovering, of West Medford, Mass., are visiting at F. H. Noyes'.

C. B. Cummings & Sons say they have no idea of going out of the business of the turning of dowels at their lower mill but they will hereafter use water power instead of steam power. Some might infer from the item in the last paper that they were to indefinitely close their mill, which is not correct.

New Owners for Lakeside Farm.

W. A. Brady of New York has bought the A. W. Thomas, Lakeside Farm, 125 acres, on Crockett Ridge. It is one of the prettiest summer locations in Oxford County, as it is near by the lake and overlooks the distant hills and mountains.

Mr. Brady has been coming here for the past six years and likes so well that he and some others have bought it. Those interested with him are William Wallace and Horace S. Waite of New Jersey. These men are engaged in a wholesale flour and produce business in New York City and have spent their summers here with Mr. Thomas for several years past.

The owners of the place will change the name from Lakeside Farm to that of Grand View and they have in mind the development of the water front for about a half mile and cutting it up for cottage lots. They have a number of city friends who would be glad to come into the country and own a cottage where there is such good fishing and boating as in the lake here.

They will undoubtedly put their farm and all of its holdings into a stock company, capitalized at a reasonable amount and selling the stock as there may be demand for it. The buildings on the farm will be occupied as a summer resort for the "colony" and garden vegetables, milk and cream will be raised to supply the cottagers.

They will take possession of the farm about the first of October. It has been hinted, and some have said, that Mr. Thomas will remain on the place and take charge of it for them for the coming winter. Whether this is a fact or not, we cannot say, but Mr. and Mrs. Thomas would make excellent people for the position.

He Could Draw.

On the occasion of Artemus Ward's professional visit to London, which occurred not long before his death, J. E. Preston Muddock says in his book, "Pages From an Adventurous Life," that the American humorist's advertisements on his "show" were as full of funny surprises as the lectures themselves. One that tickled the general was this:

"Artemus Ward delivered Lectures Before All the Crowned Heads of Europe Ever Thought of Delivering Lectures."

And an excerpt from his lecture on "Drawing" is quoted by Mr. Muddock as a particularly delightful bit.

"I haven't distinguished myself as an artist," Ward said in his inimitable way, "but have always been mixed up in art. I have an uncle who takes photographs in his sane moments and I have a servant who takes everything he can lay his hands on at any moment.

"At a very tender age I could draw on wood. When a mere child I once drew a small cart load of raw turnips over a wooden bridge. It was a raw morning. The people of the village recognized me. They said it was a raw turnip drawing. That shows how faithfully I had copied nature. I drew their attention to it, so you see there was a lot of drawing in it.

"The villagers, with the wonderful discernment peculiar to villagers, said I had a future before me. As I was walking backward when I made my drawing I replied that I thought that my future must be behind me."

If She Should Tell.

The telephone girl sits still in her chair and listens to voices from everywhere. She hears all the gossip, she hears all the news, she knows who is happy and who has the blues, she knows all our sorrows, and knows all our joys; she knows every girl who is chasing the boys, she knows of our troubles, she knows of our strife; she knows every man who is mean to his wife; she knows every time we are out with the boys, she hears the excuses each fellow employs, she knows every man who's inclined to be "fast;" in fact there's a secret 'neath each saucy curl of the quiet, demure looking telephone girl.

If the telephone girl would tell all she knows, it would turn half our friends into bitterest foes; she would sow a small wind that would soon be a gale, engulf us in trouble and land us in jail; she could let go a story (which gaining in force) would cause half our wives to sue for divorce; she could get all the churches mixed up in a fight and turn all our days into sorrowing night.

In fact she could keep the whole town in a stew; if she told one-tenth part of the things that she knew. Now doesn't it make your devoted head whirl when you think what you owe to the telephone girl?

Drowned.

Harry Smith, a river driver, was drowned at the toll bridge at Dixfield about 10 o'clock Friday forenoon, while removing logs from one of the bridge piers. Every effort was made to rescue the man, but in vain Arthur Stowell dove and brought up the body but life was extinct The young man's father was with him on the drive. He is also survived by a mother and sister in New Hampshire.

Past Tenses.

"It ees, however," said the distinguished foreigher as he concluded his story, "simply a matter heardsaid."

"You mean 'hearsay,' of course, count?"

"Ah, but zis was told me some time ago!",

Many object lessons in the rapidity with which money accumulates have been given us, but each time we come across a fresh instance, it seems more remarkable than those we have heard before. A man came into one of our banks, the other day, and closed out a savings account. The account was started at his birth in 1888, by the depositing of $5 00. A dollar or two at a time was added at intervals along the intervening years, and considerably later when the young man got to earning money for himself, larger sums were put in. But altogether only $250 had ever been deposited. When he came to draw it out, he found that this had grown until it amounted to $760. The moral is obvious.

A Visit at Larkin's.

We all know the word Larkin through the girls and boys asking us to buy some of the goods that they may send in their order and get a Larkin prize. Here is a girl who attended a missionary meeting there and this is how she discribes what she saw:—Would you believe it? The missionary good time was enjoyed in the Administration Building of the Larkin Company at Buffalo, the "Home of the Larkin Idea!" Well, why not? Do not our missionaries tell us that while it is necessary to carry the Bible in one hand, it is well to carry a cake of soap in the other? From all I've heard and read, a bottle of Larkin's perfumery wouldn't come amiss, either. But really and seriously, a missionary service held in the Larkin establishment is one of the most natural things in the world.

We had expected to see an ordinary business block, but instead, here was an imposing and handsome building large enough to make it the business home of its office force of 1,200 men and women. It was completed in 1906, is absolutely fireproof; and it is here that thousands of orders are checked, recorded and passed to the proper departments in the factories for filling and shipping.

How I wish that you could have stood with us in that great court in the center of the main portion of the building! You, too, could have looked up and up to find that it was the sky itself whose light was shining all the way down, furnishing brightness and cheer to the five stories of offices surrounding the court.

You, too, could have looked with charmed surprise at the rhododendrons, the palms, azelias, ferns—the ever-so-many clinging vines and bright blossoms which all lent their beauty to this place of business. You, too, could have read with us the beautiful mottoes and texts which illuminate the walls around the court, and which cannot fail to inspire all who read them to better and nobler ideals.

It being luncheon time we were taken to the top floor where we found the restaurant. Now you needn't picture to yourself any little seven-by-nine lunchroom, for in this dining room an average of 700 people lunch every day. Like the office space in the different stories of the building, it surrounds the same delightful court of which I have told you.

It is a most attractive place, the walls hung with pictures, and tables and chairs in Mission style. The luncheon was served, in up-to-date fashion on doilies instead of table cloths; and the luncheon itself was delicious. In addition to the soups, meats, salads and vegetables there were lots of things that girls like—sweet pickles, little cakes, ice cream and the like. If you belonged to the Larkin office force, you could have a generous serving of grape-fruit for five cents—just think of it! And here in Maine we must pay twenty or twenty-five cents at most restaurants.

While we were at luncheon, we guests plied our patient and courteous host with hundreds of questions—figuratively speaking—and we learned ever so many other interesting facts about the building. Among other things we found that the dining room could be transformed into an auditorium for a lecture or a sermon in short order. It seems that the seats and tables are so constructed that they can easily be made to serve as very comfortable and handsome pews and an audience of a thousand or so can thus be accommodated.

We learned, too, about many of the smaller details of the business carried on here—that there are one hundred and fifty telephones—that there is an electric clock which automatically regulates all other time-pieces used in this and the other buildings owned by the company—that there is a library of a thousand volumes for the use of the employes—that there are one hundred and fifty stenographers—that four thousand individual towels are used daily—that the letters are dictated to phonographs, after which the wax cylinders upon which the records have been made are taken by the typewriters; really the letters are reproduced just as music and speeches are reproduced from the ordinary phonograph record, except that instead of using a horn the sounds are carried to the ears of those who do the typewriting by a tube from the sound box.

I wonder if you'll believe me when I tell you that all the windows of this Administration Building are tightly sealed with double glass, so that the noise and dust and smoke of the city can't get inside? Are you gasping for air? And are you sympathizing with the employes whom you are imagining as hermetically sealed up?

Well, you may take a good long breath as I tell you that not only is there an abundance of air, but it is air that's been washed! Probably there is a good deal more of it, and of a much purer quality than you have in your rooms at home. And here's another advantage; this air which has been washed, is heated when the weather is cold, and cooled when the weather is warm. You will see very plainly, I think, that we ourselves are the objects of sympathy, instead of the stenographers and typewriter operators who work in this twentieth century office building.

When we guests arose from the luncheon table where we had been so delightfully entertained by our host, each of us was presented with a most fascinating looking package tied with deep violet ribbon. I tell you, girls, it was awfully hard to wait until bed-time before I could have even a little peep to see what was inside that mysterious bundle!

And the missionary meeting? O, no, I haven't forgotten it; I'm going to tell you about it just as soon as I inform you that a missionary meeting is held here every month in one of the school rooms connected with the Administration Building; and in which persons entering the employ of the Company, or clerks about to be transferred from one department to another are given special training for their new duties. In this Educational Department lessons in short-hand, painting, bookkeeping and other branches of study are given employes; and there is also a Young Woman's Christian Association Branch with a paid secretary.

It was a very agreeable surprise to find that the speaker at the missionary meeting was none other than Clara Righter, the missionary who has been engaged to represent Foreign Missions at the Basket Meetings in Maine.

So you may imagine that I looked and listened with a good deal of interest. From the moment she appeared dressed in her Chinese coat, and made us all laugh as she told us how she got the best of the Chinese dogs by giving them a kind of candy so sticky that they couldn't open their mouths wide enough to bite her as she made her round of calls, to the close of her address when she made us all cry over the poor, ill-treated Chinese girl, who upon her adoption into Miss Righter's big and happy family of girls, exclaimed, "For the first time in my life my heart is warm!" she had the rapt attention of all who were there. How glad I was that she was to come to Maine! If any of you girls have an opportunity, do go and see her and hear her tell of her twenty years' work in China.

After the missionary meeting we went up to the roof-garden and saw the conservatories and the tiled promenades—all this arranged for the recreation of the employes.

As we descended we had still further glimpses of what this Company does for the comfort of its helpers; there, a cozy rest-room; here, a sick-room with a trained nurse with all sorts of appliances for emergencies.

In the year 1875 the original Larkin establishment was just a two story building occupying only 1,600 square feet; and that now the factory buildings together with the Administration Building cover fifty acres of floor space. We would have gone over the factories where the well-known products of the Larkin Company are made but it was now time to return to the meeting at the church which already had begun.

I know you are just dying to know what was in that package; so I will tell you at once. There was a box of fragrant Talcum Powder, a box of three cakes of sandal-wood soap, a bottle of violet toilet-water and an attractive booklet which tells all about the Larkin Company; and among a great many other pictures, there is one showing the little two story building where Mr. Larkin began his business.

HEBRON.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bartlett and son of Boston have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bartlett.

Mrs. Nancy Whitman and Nellie Whitman of South Paris visited Mrs. Annie Bearce. Mrs. Whitman is over 80 years old. She rode from South Paris and back, the same day, a distance of 12 miles.

W. W. Fairclough of Richmond has been hired for instructor of modern languages at Hebron Academy. Mr. Fairclough is a graduate of Bowdoin '08. He was principal of Topsham high school last year.

How to Live Long.

There seems to be a strong desire among mankind to lengthen human life. The great physicians and scientists are industriously working away at the problem, and many of them have contributed or think they have contributed something toward its solution.

Some have found unnecessary parts of the human body which they want cut off. Others have discovered methods for killing the germs of diseases which prey upon the human race. And multitudes of family physicians and health officers are using measures which prevent serious illness. All these methods count in the sum total of the means by which life is lengthened.

But perhaps the measure adopted by a lady who recently died in one of our Eastern States at the age of one hundred and five is the most useful of all. She associated with the young people about her, took an interest in all that concerned them and was alive to everything going on around her.

A healthy mental condition is now regarded of first importance in securing and maintaining physical health. And cheerful activity is an essential to mental strength and vigor. So the men and women of advancing years who retain their interest in things that are of chief concern to people in their prime are most likely to be cheerfully active mentally and physically and to live long lives.

For the world in general this theory offers no small reward. Greater and bigger interests than ever were before are all around us. If we do not allow them to wear upon our nerves and oppress us we should be able to use them to such pleasant advantage that we can find delight in them for many years.

Golf has permitted the old man to continue, or, perhaps, to take up for the first time a career of sport. The automobile has allowed old men and women to visit the interesting parts of that section of the country in which they live. The telephone makes it easy to transact business, and the better class of phonographs brings excellent music within reach of the people who live far from musical centres.

Because the world has so many bigger and better things in it than ever before, people are living longer, and the physicians and scientists who are discovering methods for prolonging life are merely expressing the spirit of the age.

Take an interest in one or many of the activities of the age and maintain a youthful attitude toward your fellows. Common sense and the physicians should do the rest. Under these conditions you should be able to live many interesting, valuable and delightful years.

Couldn't Josh Him.

A young country chap once got a job in a city grocery. He was very cautious in his new berth—they had told him at home that the city people would try to josh him because he was green. He kept a sharp lookout accordingly for joshers.

A sober old maid entered the grocery one morning.

"I want some birdseed, please," she said.

The new clerk sneered and answered scornfully:

Lumber Inspected for Browntails.

The Boston & Maine railroad has entered a fight against browntail moths and has issued pamphlets to its agents all over the system. In this booklet the company announces the road's determination to prevent the spread of the moth and also the means to be adopted in confining the pests to the districts already infested.

From now on no freight agent will permit a forest product to be shipped unless the material has been inspected by the proper authorities. Authority for them to ship the goods will be contained in a certificate of inspection which will be properly issued. Without the certificate no forest material will be allowed in any building or on the grounds belonging to the company. The shipments included in the order are lumber, cordwood, railroad ties, tree bark, telegraph poles, fence posts, spiles, logs, staves and slabs or any other material suspected of being infested with moth.

The following are among the freight stations named in the infested district: Agamenticus, Alfred, Biddeford on both divisions, Eliot, Kennebunk Beach, Kennebunkport, Kennebunk, North Berwick, Old Orchard, Pine Point, Saco on both divisions, South Berwick, Springvale, Wells on both divisions, West Kennebunk.

Keeping Milk in Summer.

A serious problem comes to every farm dairyman in the proper care and treatment of milk during the summer season. For all who find this a difficult task a press bulletin issued by the Oklahoma Experiment Station offers many valuable suggestions.

It is impossible, in practical dairy work, entirely to prevent bacteria from falling into the milk, but if the following suggestions are heeded the number gaining entrance and their rate of development will be greatly lessened:

1. Do not feed dry hay or fodder at milking time, and to prevent dust from rising from the floor use the sprinkling can, for dust means bacteria.

2. Do not brush the cow just before or at the time of milking, for the dead skin and hairs carrying thousands of bacteria, will be loosened ready to drop into the pail.

3. Do not permit the cow to switch her tail over the milk pail, for she is certain to throw hundreds of bacteria into the milk at every flip.

4. Do not soak the teats or udder with milk or water so that drops fall into the pail, but moisten with a cloth for a moist surface does not readily permit bacteria to leave it.

5. Do not regard milking as a dirty task and wear old and filthy clothes, for the handling of food for human beings should be made a cleanly task.

6. Do not wash pails and cans with cold water but scald with boiling water and steam; and by all means avoid rinsing with cold water usually containing several thousand bacteria.

7. Do not wait to finish milking before beginning the cooling of the milk, but set the can in a tub of cold water so that each cow's milk will be cooled immediately after milking; for a high temperature causes bacteria to multiply very rapidly.

8. Do not fail to thoroughly clean and scald the parts of the separator each time it is used, for bacteria thrive in the separator slime.

Referring to some methods in common use for the preservation of milk we find the bulletin taking this ground:

The heating of milk to destroy bacteria or the use of a preservative to prevent their growth has been resorted to but neither of these take the place of cleanliness. The first injures the quality of the milk, the second makes it dangerous to health, and is prevented by law. If it is thought that there may be a case of tuberculosis in the herd, or that it is possible for the typhoid germ to get into the milk, heating may be resorted to as a safeguard. To render milk safe from these bacterial diseases it should be heated to a temperature of of 165 F. for a period of 15 minutes. Milk obtained from tested herds under the proper sanitary conditions will, if kept at as low a temperature as possible, seldom need to be pasteurized. It is as true here as anywhere, that, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

It is a splendid opportunity for those who cannot afford the time or expense to go to the city. Dr. Greene makes a specialty of curing patients through letter correspondence. He is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, and is the discoverer of that wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

A large beetle, with long mandibles, was recently discovered in Saco killing browntail moths. He is supposed to be one of the parasitic insects supplied by government officials to fight the moth nuisance. The parasite, if that is what he is, seems to kill the moths, but does not eat them. His mandibles were white with the remains of moths.

An inquirer wants to know where the liars go to, but up to date there is no evidence they have gone anywhere.

Ohio Wheat Holds Its Own.

John W. Burk, of Ohio, says Farmers Should Increase Acreage.

It is interesting to note—in view of the exploitation of the west and northwest as the great wheat country of America—that one of the finest flours made in the United States is an Ohio product from start to finish. And that one of the partners of the firm that makes it is a president of the Millers' National Federation whose membership includes every prominent miller in the United States.

Mr. John W. Burk, of the firm of Ansted & Burk, making William Tell flour, has an experience of 45 years. He knows the flour business down to the minutest detail, and personally inspects all the wheat that goes into his famous flour.

Mr. Burk says that the bread making qualities of flour depend entirely on the wheat that goes into it, and that Ohio soil produces a wheat that hasn't a rival in the whole country.

Ohio Red Winter Wheat makes flour that the housekeeper pins her faith to forever after the first sack—and it is the only kind that goes into William Tell. It is too bad that Ohio can't raise enough wheat to let the the entire country get a chance to try William Tell flour.

But Mr. Burk doesn't find all Ohio Red Winter wheat up to his exacting standard. He says that Ansted & Burk are not trying to make the most flour, but the best—and that if he can't get wheat that suits him, he will make less flour.

Ansted & Burk have one of the most up-to-date mills in the country. If every housekeeper could see how each sack of William Tell flour was made, she would enjoy it all the more. This is one of the industries that Ohioans should be proud of.

And they surely are. Mr. Burk says that they never have been able to keep up with the demand for William Tell.

It's up to the farmers to grow more Red Winter wheat and to see that it's the superfine quality that Mr. Burk demands.

A Terrific Shower.

During the terrific thunder shower Friday evening, July 16, the dwelling house of Perley McKeen was struck by lightning, doing some damage but not setting fire to the buildings. The lightning burned the covered telephone wire that is attached to the house, severed both wires above the telephone machine, burned out the carbon, thus running along several feet on on the wire outside of the house, broke the wire again, just over the door that enters the dining room, then about seven feet from the door where the water pipe is laid made a hole in the ground some four feet deep and six inches in diameter. One corner of the screen door was shattered, the casings around the door splintered and partly torn off, clapboards broken and torn off and quite a hole made in the house beside the door.

Mr. McKeen was looking out through the screen door when the lightning struck and it was a miracle that he was not killed as the end of the broken wire was close to his face. He and his wife were dazed but not unconscious. They are both in poor health and have suffered considerably from the shock.

During the shower the lightning struck three telephone poles near Perley McKeen's and M. A. Allen's and an apple tree opposite Aivah Gammon's house. Mr. Allen was quite severely shocked when the telephone pole opposite his house was struck. It was fortunate no one was killed and that there were no buildings burned as it was the worst shower that has passed over this place for years.

The lawn party held by Onward Rebekah Lodge, Tuesday evening, on David Emmons lawn was a decided success. The day preceding it was very warm and the evening clear, cool and refreshing. The lawn was surrounded with Japanese lantern decoration. The entertainment consisted of readings by Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Curtis and one by Herbert Richardson. Most excellent accordian music was furnished by Ed Field, who played between the readings and for the games. Ice cream, cake and lemonade found ready sale and a good little sum was realized from it.

Comic post cards with dogs on them have been in great demand of late, the occasion being a joke on one of our fun loving citizens, Charles Barden by name. It seems that friend Charles had been missing chickens from his henery and decided to catch the miscreant if possible, supposing it might be a skunk, so straight-way set a trap. Late last Friday night he was awakened by a great commotion in the direction of his henyard. He and his good wife arose to investigate. Imagine his surprise when he discovered that he had caught somebody's pet dog, who was howling for all he was worth. Mrs. Barden held the lantern while Charles attempted to loose him but found it too dangerous a job; therefore he pulled the staple and let him go, trap and all. Away went the dog, making a bee-line across the fields, toward Trap Corner and his master, Newie Rowe. The dog escaped serious injury and Newie had no trouble in removing the offending trap. Charles' boasted courage is a matter of question among his friends.

Prepare Yourself for Business.

The advertisement of The Shaw Business College in another column should appeal to those in need of a business education. A school which allows its students to attend one month and guarantees full satisfaction before payment is required must be worthy of patronage. Twenty-five years' continuous service in preparing young people for business, coupled with the privilege of personally investigating its merits before payment is required, has gained the confidence of the public.

The forty-eight page catalogue, giving full details of its work, is to be had for the asking.

Automobiles in Eden would be rather incongruous.
